

Countable and uncountable nouns

Watch the grammar video here:

<http://learnenglishkids.britishcouncil.org/en/grammar-videos/how-many-sweets>

1. Where does it go?

Kitty and Max are hungry! Kitty wants to eat food which is countable, and Max wants to eat food which is uncountable! Write the food in the correct place.

tomatoes	milk	apples	pasta	eggs	juice
cheese	sweets	rice	grapes	bread	sandwiches

tomatoes

milk

2. Match them up!

How do we use a/an, some, and any with countable and uncountable nouns? Match the examples and the rules!

Countable: one object

Countable: more than one object

Countable: negative

Countable: question

Uncountable: an amount

Uncountable: negative

Uncountable: question

There are some tomatoes.

There's some milk.

There's a tomato.

Is there any milk?

Are there any tomatoes?

There aren't any tomatoes.

There isn't any milk.

3. Fill it in!

Write the missing words in the sentences. Use a/an, some, or any.

- a. There's an apple in the cupboard.
- b. Kitty has _____ sandwich for lunch.
- c. They've got _____ grapes.
- d. They've got _____ bread in the cupboard.
- e. There aren't _____ bananas in the cupboard.
- f. They haven't got _____ pasta.
- g. Are there _____ apples in your cupboard?
- h. Is there _____ milk in your fridge?

4. Draw a picture.

Remember Kitty's food cupboard? What's in your food cupboard and fridge? Draw a picture and write some sentences!

We've got

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....